WEG Surgical Solutions launches innovative Warming System at Global AORN Conference

(NASHVILLE, T.N., April 8, 2019) WEG Surgical Solutions commercially launched its line of innovative open basin surgical irrigation warmers at the 2019 Global AORN Conference & Expo in Nashville, T.N., this week. More than 5,690 people attended this year's event, including 595 in executive leadership positions.

"We are thrilled to launch our latest product, the WEG Surgical Solutions Warming System, at this week's conference," says T.J. Wanbaugh, WEG co-founder and Managing Partner. "The WEG Warmer is going to be a game changer in the surgical irrigation fluids field."

WEG Surgical Solutions Warming System is designed with expert nurses to reduce unexpected events during surgical procedures. The System is built to precisely control temperature of irrigation fluids to prevent unplanned perioperative hypothermia which can adversely affect the post-surgical recovery of the patient. It also aids drape placement and provides additional protection to help prevent the breach of the sterile barrier necessary during surgical procedures. The dual layer drapes are designed to fit the basins and allow easy and exact placement every time, with a low friction layer allowing easy placement and the high friction layer providing stability. The design provides added protection for the sterile barrier, and sealing between the drapes allows air pockets to escape, ensuring more consistent heat transfer.

Working together, the warmers and drapes provide reliably warm irrigation solutions for the patient and help reduce the possibility of drape burns and punctures which can compromise the sterile field.

About WEG Surgical Solutions

WEG Surgical Solutions was started to fill the gap between under-engineered and dated products to over-engineered attempted solutions. With decades of experience in the medical device field, WEG's leadership works directly with individuals using its products — including operating room nurses — to develop tools that deliver safe and consistently warmed irrigation fluids to the surgical team where and when they are needed. All WEG products place safety first, are easy to use, maintain the highest quality standards and are cost effective. Please visit wepsurgical.com to learn more.
